Congressman Ramspeck said he will propose to congress a law prohibiting the manufacture of automobiles capabie of attaining a speed higher than 60 miles per hour. "This can be done by prohibiting the manufacture for shipment into interstate commerce of machines capable of doing more than 60," he declared. Christmas happiness was tinged with sadness in Atlanta, where five persons met death on the streets from Tuesday to Thursday. Speigleberg was fatally injured in the 200 block of Forrest avenue when the car he was driving crashed into a

Cobb Says: Take 'Tax' for Example

(Copyright, 1935, by North American News paper Alliance, Inc.) HOLLY WOOD, Cal., Dec. 26.—
Had a profitable hour with the unabridged dictionary. Many people don't favor the dictionary for light reading. As Bill Nye pointed out, the style is jumpy and the narrative not well-sustained.

care for it because you can't turn to the last chapter and see how the love story comes out. Instead, you run into a character called Zyt'um. evidently a foreigner who up ntil now has not figured in the plot at

But today, in skimming through. But today, in saimming through, I came across a root-word which it seems has produced certain significant offspring, as follows: Taxare—meaning to touch sharply: taxicab—use of this runs into money: taxidermy—the art of skinning and continuous for the statement of the statement o tanidermy—the art of skinning and cleaning; taximeter—a device for adding up sums rapidly and producing large totals; taxis—reduction by manipulation; taxodium—a plant which is so often stripped as to be naked most of the time.

You've guessed it. The parent word is tax. So don't ever come around again telling me our legislators aren't up on some of the lators aren't up on some of the more subtle stuff in that book.

POLLING AMERICA REPORTS ON TAXES

Taxes going up? New government services being added? What do the people of America think of this most vital trend of the day? Do they think the government is giving them what they pay for? Are they resentful of the price? Do they want what the government buys for them? In the simple words of Dr. Daniel Starch's nation-wide poll, do they think taxes are "high," "low" or "fair?"

Now America answers. Dr. Starch's investigators found in every part of the country an overwhelming awareness of the importance of the issue. Almost everyone has made up his mind and was eager to

"Well," said the director. "it all depends on how it's done. See what you can do to develop it. Grover, and maybe we'll try it out."

Not a gleam of amusement flickered in any eyes but mine. I've been told it's always thus at story conferences. Comedy is a business, the most uncertain business of all. They were treating it coldly, like technicians. They wouldn't agree that anything was funny until they'd seen it on the screen and got an audience reaction. So the story conference broke up.

The Training of a Husband Begins When a Schoolma'am Smacks Him

Students of America seem to agree that Lincoln and Harding, more an any other Presidents, were typical of their country and their times. Certainly they were typically American in their domestic arrangements, for only in America is the all-conquering male, however great his fame and achievements, nagged at and herded and reproved by domineering spouse.

Lincoln's Mollie was a nagger whose sharp tongue gave him no peace. With the nation at war and his sleepless mind near despair with the burden of its sorrows, she could still bedevil him because his visitors muddied the White House carpets.

Mrs. Harding was a "manager" also. Describing her in the last volume of "Our Times," Mark Sullivan pays tribute to Harding's quiet patience "that enabled him to endure the harsh, catarrhal r's of her halfcommanding, half archly-playful 'Now Warren-'

That "Now Warren" is as typically American as the dotted line and ham and eggs. You will hear it from coast to coast and border to border, and the tone is the same whether the offending husband is using the wrong fork, dropping ashes, taking a drink, buying a railroad preparing a ruling of the court.

How will the historians account for the fact that a superior man. having proved his ability by climbing above all competitors to a place of power and glory, still submits to the "bossing" of a woman whose only claim to distinction is that she married him? Part of it may be due to the American's incurable romanticism. He always pictures himself as a knight, fighting for his lady, and he continues to play that role, no matter how the lady acts.

And much of it is due to the American woman's belief, usually wellfounded, that her man is a diamond-in-the-rough that needs considerable polishing before it is ready to be shown in public. But most of it doubtless results from the fact that boys are managed by mothers and sisters and ruled by feminine school teachers until surrender to feminine rule, however reluctant and rebellious, becomes a mental habit. If the pup is trained to obey a whistle, the old dog will come when any master whistles.

Talmudic Tales BY DAVID MORANTZ.

He offered him a very valuable token of his regard but the friend refused it stating that the most appreciated gift he could receive would be for Solomon to teach him the language of the animals.

Solomon was reluctant to grant his request but finally consented.

When the man returned home, he overheard his donkey ask of the ox, that had recently been purchased:

"Tell me how," eagerly pleaded the ox, "and I shall be forever grateful to you." "All right," said the donkey, night when the master puts feed in your manger, do not eat it and to-morrow when he sees you have not eaten, he will think you are sick and will let you take a good rest because he will not work a sick animal."

That night the master stealthily came into the stable to see what would happen. There he saw that the ox, taking the donkey's advice, had not touched his food and had gone off to sleep. While the cunning donkey, after having eaten his own rations, had reached over into the manger of the ox floor and was eating his food also. Determined to punish the crafty donkey for this trick, the master gave

His choice as head of the board for 1936 will be upheld by 10 of the 14 members on the first balloting, it was declared by majority members. Mr. Cook has served on all the important board committees and is said to be thoroughly acquainted with the work.

Brewer, an old schoolmate of Cook's, said last night that unless something entirely unforseen came up, he would take no stand against Cook as the majority faction candidate. He also declared that he would not offer for re-election and would not offer for re-election and would not offer for e-election and would not offer for e-election and would not offer for in the following balloting in his favor.

Although some members of the board expressed the opinion that the election of Cook to the presidency is a foregone conclusion others said that a second slate would be presented to the board, backing the candidacy of either D. M. Therell or S. C. Noland, both of whom have had long service on the board. It was said that the group favoring either Noland or Therell would decide on its candidate in a day or two.

SMALL TOWN GIRL

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

After a year at Wellesley, Kay Brannan leaves because of financial troubles at home. She persuades Chick Rantoul, advertising man, to take her on as his assistant for she is determined not to go back to the dull town of Carvel. Genevieve, her roommate is a cousin to Bob Dakin, whom Kay has never met. He is engaged to Priscilla Hyde. It is Generieve who lectures Kay about her drinking and partying and Kay promises to reform and get married. But that day Chick scolds her for neglecting her job. In a fury she quits and makes a date with Dane Ripley whom she secretly distrusts. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XVII.

Kat had met most of the others, and Sally Hays was of course an old friend. Kay saw Sally with delight; clung to her arm for a while with an instinctive desire for the other's guidance and sponsoring. She felt very keenly that she did not belong here. Reenly that she did not belong here. These others were, clearly, wealthy; the gowns they wore made her best look like a home-made product. She, Kay Brannan, with less than four dollars in her purse and no other tangible assets except a week's salary due her tomorrow, was an intruder here. She must win her way, pay for her entertainment somehow. here. She must win her way for her entertainment somehow.

And she tried to do so, putting on as the cocktails began to circulate a factitious viracity, straining to be as charming as possible, not only to Dane but to them all.

When they went below to dress. Sally came into Kay's stateroom.
"Haven't seen you for weeks, darling."
she said. "Dane wasn't even sure you were coming.

Kay said: "Oh, I needed to—go on a tear! Lost my job yesterday, so I'm celebrating."

Sally looked at her thoughtfully; but she asked no questions. She only said: "I knew there was something, when you took the fourth Martini. Where do you put them, Kay? Your capacity is a continual surprise to me..."

Kay remembered another conversa-tion curiously like this one. "It's in-herited," she said recklessly. "Father Sally urged: "Lie down for a while before dinner, Kay dear. I'll have them bring you some milk, or tomato juice. Harry's Martinis are dyna-mite."

"Oh. I'm not drunk." Kay said indifferently. "Just a little tired..."

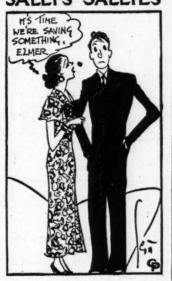

She felt when she came up to dinner as though she were walking in her sleep. Her legs obeyed her, and her tongue too—though sometimes she heard it saying things which surprised her. But her emotions were all in Afterwards, she was rather glad when they all went on deck to watch from the shelter of the awnings a gust of rain sweep across the harbor. Then there was dancing, and stewards with tall glasses, and visitors. She and Dane sat on a broad divan built against the deck house facing aft; and the rain came again and passed again, and the others began to difficulties and the rain came again and passed again. and the others began to difficulties and the rain came again and passed again, and the others began to difficulties and the rain came again and passed again. ". take the car and push off.

Everybody milling around . . won't miss us. They'll sleep till noon tomorrow. We'll get back before they're up. What do you say, Kay? Going to be nice to me?"

The half hour that followed was like a nightmare: like one of those ugly, formless dreams never sufficiently tangible to wake the sleeper, yet tormenting and hopeless and wearying. It was like half-waking to remember where you were, and Kay tried to wake up, growing toward consciousness and sanity again. Dane's kisses bewildered her, interfered with her fumbling effort to make the swimming world stand still, to make chaos give way to order. And he talked so much, and he tried once to drag her to her feet; and she pushed him away, petulently, frowning, trying so terribly hard to bring her mind back to clarity again.

She asked once gropingly: "You

She asked once gropingly: "You mean you want to marry me?" And he laughed recklessly and said something mirthful and challenging, and she insisted: "But do you?" And then she realized that he did not, and she was so sorry for herself that she began to cry, and he to be angry, and then the clouds in her brain began to move and assume form and shape, and little by little she could think with some accuracy, could understand. And she said something, in bitter reproach. He stood up, stared angrily down at her.

"I think you're drunk, Dane," she told him miserably, "You must be!"

"Well. you're not cold sober yourself!" he retorted. "Unless you've got a head like an oyster!"

"I was wrong to come," she confessed. "I was—desperate, pretty unhappy, Dane." She tried to stand up. "Why don't you ask one of the men to put me ashore? I can catch a train back to Boston."

The old Greek "oracles" were places where people could get answers to questions. One was at Dodona, in northwestern Greece. The god Zeus was supposed to give answers by causing leaves of oak or beech trees to rustle in the wind. The priests told what the rustling meant.

The most famous Greek oracle was the one at Delphi, in central Greece. In a glen in a mountain region, a temple was built in honor of the god, Apollo. The old Greek "oracles" were places

Speaking through a priestess, Apollo was supposed to tell people what they wanted to know. The priestess chewed bay leaves before she spoke, and some reports say that she breathed strong vapors from a spring at the place. Her answers were jumbled words or sounds, but there were "holy men" at the temple who told what the god was saying through the priestess. priestess.

The holy men must have been clever, for in general they gave very good answers. Men and women from all over Greece made visits to Delphi.

The introduction to this story should, I imagine, have as its introduction a paraphrase of the old Christmas poem as follows:

"'Twas the morn after Christmas

"Twas the morn after Christmas

And all through the house,
Only one creature was stirring,
The old family souse."

He was telling the story himself. It seems that on Christmas night he celebrated. He was the life of the party. His wife admonished him severely at times, but he replied it was Christmas. Whoopee! And Christmas comes but once a year.
Whoopee! It was, it seems, his night to howl. And so, far

His mouth tasted like an old potato. He finally got off the covers and wended his way to the refrigerator. He yearned and lusted for water. He would give up a year of his life for water.

To his horror, the water bottles had been left unfilled. (It developed later he was responsible.) . He went on wavering legs to the bathroom and turn the spigot. He stared with unbelieving eyes as no water responded.

There was only the mocking gurgle of air in an empty pipe. The pipes had frozen in the ground beneath his house. There was not a drop of water to be had. From the bedroom came the cheery voice of the "Christmas comes but once a year," she chortled. And the empty pipes gurgled a fiend's laughter.

A BOWL CASUALTY.

One more Christmas story to close out the season. One of the town's young men showed up at his office yes-His face showed evidences of a struggle. He walked with a slight limp.

"Gee," said his partner, "you look as if you'd been in a football game."

"Well," said the young man sadly, "I wasn't at the Rose Bowl, the Sugar Bowl or the Orange Bowl, but you may put me down as a casualty of a bowl game, all right, all rightthe Eggnog Bowl!"

And he limped forlornly into his office.

THE GRASS ROOTS PARTY.

Golf professionals of Atlanta last night formed an Atlanta chapter of the Grass Roots party.

They called a meeting of the Atlanta chapter of the P. G. A. and prayed for their winter greens.

Winter greens in Atlanta are affected more by the consistent cold of this past week than at any time in the past 10 years. Most courses report all the grass killed with only the grass roots left alive.

The Grass Root party is praying this morning's freeze will not kill the roots. If it does, winter golfers freeze will not kill the roots. If it does, winter golfers will find their putting a little bit worse than usual.

Were it not for the fact no turf has been found which is suited for major tournament play at any time of the year, Atlanta could entertain the national open or amateur. But as long as Bermuda greens are standard for summer and rye for winter, it is impossible to obtain one of the two major golf student Health Association.

TECH'S SPRING PROGRAM.

Georgia Tech's athletic director, Mr. William Alexander, will institute a wide program of intramural sports in the spring. This will compensate for the temporary abolition of swimming, because Tech has no swimming pool, and baseball, because not even the students are interested enough to attend

The main sports, football for fall, basketball for winter, and track for spring, remain. The idea to supplement with intramural sports is the sensible one.

It is well enough to argue a wide variety of so-called major sports should be retained. But the fact remains that in a university in the south, which cannot include winter sports, a squad of about 50 athletes takes care of all sports. There will be some men who play only basketball and some who are just track men or basketball men. But the backbone of all the major sports in the south is a group of about 50 men.

SHOULD BE CAUSE.

"The so-called blacklisting of officials by any college should be effected only for good cause and passed upon by a committee of our own association, jointly with the colleges concerned," said Crovley. "It is ridiculous to let the opin n of one or two coaches, based upon an individual play or game, sway an entire college group and thereby establish ratings for officials."

cials."

In appealing for more recognition as well as higher wages, Crowley cited estimates that 650,000 boys played football this year in the United States, that 13,000 of them competed for 400 colleges in 3,500 games and that, all told, 30,000,000 cash customers contributed to an aggregate "gate" of $60,000,000.

$60,000,000.

FIVE OFFICIALS?

Crowley's four-ply recommendations included a suggestion for five arbiters, instead of the customary four, at each game. The fifth official, according to his idea, would be picked from younger men and used as a thrown the scripmage line or for man on the scrimmage line or for man on the scrimmage line or for pinch-hitting purposes.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Okeson revealed that suggestions for higher officiating wages had fallen upon deaf ears, so far as the major eastern universities are concerned. "Tops" for 1936 will be $75 per official for any game, the same as this year. Formerly it was $15 for an "over-night" assignment and $100, plus expenses, otherwise for big games. The minimum scale now for any eastern game, under Commissioner Okeson's jurisdiction, is $25.

By Paul Zimmerman.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. '26.—(AP)—Stanford's "vow boys" came back to the Rose Bowl gridiron today for the third successive year—resolved to break a New Year's Day losing streak at the expense of Southern Methodist.
Coach Claude (Tiny) Thounhill

With him came Monk Moscrip, starend, determined not to let a lame knee keep him out of the Mustang contest.
"I've tried out my injured knee and I'm sure it will hold up during the game," he said. Moscrip took part in today's stiff workout, but was not used in scrimmage.

There was a determination in the Indians' first workout that was missing in the attitude before the Columbia and Alabama games of the last two seasons. Stanford lost both

Colleges will be the losers in Sue Clapp's plans, for her one desire is NOT to go to college. She wants to run a tea room and has many grand ideas for her business, which she says will be a vast improvement over some in which she has dined. Bridge laurels worn by Mrs. Eli Culbert-son may not be of permanent nature, for Dot Bagwell takes bridge very seriously and is determined to be an expert, which is her one desire. Sally found to her great delight that one young belle wants to be a reporter. She is Bebe O'Brien, and who would be a more welcome addition to the Fourth Estate than this lovely young person? Jeannette Gilham is laying her plans for future kindergarten work. With her lovely manner it won't be hard for mothers to persuade Junior and Mahan-McWaters. Mahan—McW aters.

A marriage marked by dignity and beauty was that of Miss Vera Mahan to Phillip McWaters, which took place at twilight last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. T. McWaters on Fair street. Rev. Horace Dunn performed the ceremony in the presence of a group of friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride-waid was Mrs. Richard M. Everitt and the best man was Johnnie McWaters, brother of the groom. The bride wore a black chiffon dress trimmed with a deep frill of eggshell at the neck, with cuffs of the same material. She wore a shoulder bouquet of rosebuds and valley lilies. The bridesmaid wore a chatteau blue taffeta with silver slippers, and she wore a corsage of roses and carnations.

Was Chairman of D. C.-Vir- Prominent Georgia Lumber ginia Boundary Body; Ex-Arkansas Governor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—(P)—
Dr. Charles Hillman Brough, chairman of the District of Columbia-Virginia boundary commission and wartime Governor of Arkansas, died to day of a heart attack at his homehere.

He had been ill 10 days, but was believed on the way to recovery. Brough arose apparently in good spirits and asked his wife to get him a newspaper. While she was out of the room, he collapsed. Governor Brough was 59 years old.

The body will be taken to Little Rock, Ark., for burial Sunday afternoon. The funeral party was en route tonight after a short service, and expected to arrive in Little Rock Saturday morning. The funeral there will be from the Second Baptist church, of which Governor Brough was a member.

Known in the south as an orator. Brough entered polities in 1916 while professor of sociology at the University of Arkansas.

"His students and former students," said Mrs. Brough, "elected him Governor of Arkansas," in 1916 and he served from 1917 to 1921.

Governor Brough, a native of Cinton, Miss., held degrees from several universities, and taught economics and sociology at Missussippi College and Hillman College before entering a long period of service in the University of Arkansas faculty.

He completed his work with the boundary commission recently, recommending to congress settlement of the dispute of over 100 years' standing.

If Your Skin Is Drying Out Here Is Something For It

There is a constant demand from women who want a soft and velvety skin like they had during the summer, for a good, pure, nourishing cream to use during cold weather. From the amount of requests that come in, I suspect that all women are either getting old or have dried their skins out in the hot, summer sunshine. From morning to night, there is a cry for a "good, rich cream" that will soften the skin that is becoming wrinkled or dry looking. Of course, it is just possible that this fad of dieting one's self to death is responsible for the face's needing a little nourishment. At any rate, I have found a good cream for you if you are one of this army of women whose faces are drying out.

This cream is extremely oily, rich, easy to apply, quickly absorbed, economical because it does not take very much and not expensive.

So many creams calculated to soften the skin and "nourish" it are either too thin or too sticky to suit me. This cream is neither. I would say the consistency is perfect. If I were you and needed a good, oily tissue cream, I would run right down and buy a jor of this. You are going to like me for suggesting it.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon at The Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the. city., in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD. Problems of general interest submit-ted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am engaged to a man whose wife died about a year ago. He has two daughters whom he is very devoted to. He wants to wait until they are married before he gets married because he believes there will be trouble between us if they are living in the home. But sup-pose they don't get married soon what fix does this leave me in? I am will-ing to wait a reasonable time, say a year, but I don't think he ought to ask me to string along with him in-definitely. I think he is selfish with me and I don't know how to change him. Can you advise me?

Answer; Waiting for a couple of girls to get married is just one step removed from waiting for some-body to die. The more eager you are the less hope you have. The watched pot never boils. There is nothing you can do but accept the verdict and wait for the happy day or give your fiance his walking papers and tell him to be off. He knows his own daughters and if he believes they will make trouble for him and you he is probably right. A widower is proverbially impatient to get married once he finds the woman he wants to make his wife. If he is afraid to risk it on account of his grown daughters, his intended can't quell his fears.

Of course you may argue that he is putting his own peace of mind above yours and forcing you to play second fiddle to his children. If this is the case he is selfish. But it is entirely possible that he is considering your happiness at the same time in refusing to put you in a position that will be humiliating to you as well as to him."

new bride. If they are not unusual girls they will be displeased and re-sentful toward any woman that suc-ceeds to their mother's place with their father and in the home.

He could stand either a diamond or a club response from North. Whether he should have passed to East's dou-ble of the no-trump is a moot point— A man who has ample means can always provide a separate home for his grown children when he brings in an unwelcome step-mother whom they resent. Or they can go to work and provide their own livelihood. However, if they are accustomed to he undoubtedly felt that the fat al-ready was in the fire and that he might only make a bad matter worse by raising the contract. The play was most interesting and exciting (except from the North and South point of view!). East opened the diamond kind and then made the excellent shift to the club ten. Dum-

Answer: There is just one way out for you, dear child. It is to end the affair with the married man and end affair with the married man and end it abruptly. But you won't take that way yet awhile, because you believe implicitly that yours is a predestined love affair and that the fate which decreed that you should meet and love one another will some day open the way for you to have one another. So you will go on and on being tormented by jealousy, wracked with doubts and fears, still believing in a fairer future. But the chances are one thorture. But the chances are one thou-sand to one that it will never dawn. The married man who toys with the

When the door of hope has closed in your face, you will be in such a fury with the man who has led you on with false promises, that you will probably come to hate him with all the strength of your wounded feminine pride. In the meantime, you will have lost some of the best years of your youth, destroyed (with his help) your faith in men as a class, embittered your spirit and smudged the clean sheet of your girlish mind. What a price to pay for the excitement of a concealed love affair! And then we haven't mentioned the injustice done to the innocent wife.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

My sympathy always goes out to the player who finds himself in that most baffling and provocative of bridge situations: opponent with a part-score makes a bid, he holds a fair hand—shall he defend or surrender?

Even with such a bidding yardstick available as the Culbertson "rule of two and three" governing defensive overcalls, it is difficult to hew strictly to the line when the opponents are about to sail blithely to a rubber on a miserable bid of one. The tempta-CATASTROPHE.

Power, Light Issues Firm; Market Takes on Higher Appearance.

Daily Bond Averages.

Year-end reinvestment by financial institutions which limit commitments to the highest type of obligation was believed in most quarters to have accounted for a considerable portion of the activity. A number of large corporations with surplus cash balances that no longer can be employed in savings accounts also were understood to be enlarging their holdings of government securities.

Heavy demand for utility stocks

Unsettled Deals for Current Heavy demand for utility stocks

Heavy demand for utility stocks served to focus attention on a large number of power and light bonds that have occupied prominent places in recent market movements. American Water Works 5s advanced 1 point to 112; Federal Light & Traction 5s were 1-2 higher at 97, and small gains were shown by Columbia Gas 5s and Peoples Gas 5s.

Railroad and industrial bonds had Railroad and industrial bonds had a steady undertone. St. Paul 5s were 3-4 higher at 161-4; Allis Chalmers 4s got up a point at 116 5-8, and Missouri Pacific 5s improved 11-8; and Missouri Pacific 5s improved 11-8; Southern Pacific 41-2s and Warren Southern Pacific 41-2s and Warren 5s upon 1 point at 165-8; Bothers 6s. Both Richfield Oil 6s Brothers 6s. Both Richfield Oil 6s and Pan-American Petroleum 6s, exemple 1 point at 165 per 1 point 1 po Southern Pacific 4 1-2s and Warren Brothers 6s. Both Richfield Oil 6s and Pan-American Petroleum 6s, extremely strong earlier in the the week, dropped back for small losses.

Modest recovery in several of the Italian issues was the central feature of the foreign division; the Crown 7s advanced a point to 54 and Rome 61-2s were 3-8 higher at 53 3-8. Other foreign issues were quiet and steady.

(P)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern oning cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 11.61 cents a pound; government subsidy 0.39 of a cent a pound.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON. Spot cotton closed quiet, ten points lower, at 11.95.

By FRED WILLIAMS. NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 26.—(P)— The cotton market was a dull affair i today and price movements were as limited as the volume of business. With Liverpool closed for a holiday and developments over Christmas providing nothing for traders to work on, futures held in a narrow range and finally closed barely steady, from 2 to 3 points lower.

There was a little trade buying in the near months during the morning

Scientist Photographs Breaking Up of Atom

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 26.—
(P)—Proof that successive disintegrations of an atom can be photographed was offered today by Dr. Russell Wilkins, professor of physics at the University of Rochester. He said he had captured on plates with special smulsion, five successive breakdowns of an atom of radium. The photographs, which show up of radium.

The photographs, which show up the photographs, which show up as tiny streaks across two plates, were actual pictures of tiny atoms that live only a few millionths of a second, travel at 20,000 miles a second and are only one trillionth of an inch in diameter. The final picture reveals the final substance in the succession as one of lead, where the disintegration stops.

The one conclusion Dr. Wilkins drew was that two of the tracks showing similar angles on the showing similar angles on the plates, probably indicate that helium atoms corresponding to them are shot out simultaneously and that one of the substances in the line one of the substances in the line.

HAWAII LAVA STREAM ARKY VAUGHAN

HILO, Hawaii, Dec. 26.-(A)-Army aviators decided tonight to bomb Mauna Loa volcano and its huge lava stream, now advancing rapidly toward Hilo.

Seeking to change the course of the eruption and save Hilo's water supply, 12 fighting planes flew here from Honolulu to launch the attack tomor-ow, weather permitting. A 600-foot channel of molten rock coursing down Mauna Loa was within 15 miles of this city of 20,000, driving every living thing from its path. Hilo was not threatened directly but the blazing river was within five miles of the Waikoloa ponds, source of Hilo's water. of Hilo's water.

subject . . . which generally is present, ravaging gums and health long before it is suspected. Pyorrhea is often responsible for kidney disease, arthritis, muscular lesions, nervous disorders, fatigue, insomnia, neuralgia, headaches, and numerous other complaints. Guard your health -save your teeth-eliminate Pyorrhea!

Pyorrhea is dangerous and the great danger lies in the fact the victim is often uncon-scious of being a host until some other serious infection has set up in some other part of the body, which jeopardizes the victim's entire life. Pyorrhea is not only a subtle, treacherous and deceitful disease, but also very insistent.

Social standing might lead one to conclude that his mouth is free of the expensive dentistry or mechanical contrivances that he supports, whereas in truth his mouth may be more susceptible than that of some poverty-stricken person who totally neglects his teeth. Infection is no respecter of persons estate are more prone to bacterial attacks than their less fortunate brethren. Due to greater inactivity and lowered resistance, they are less able to combat disease than the

Halitosis, or "Unpleasant" breath, is a very common and unfortunate complaint. More so because the offender is often unaware of the disorder. This offensive condition has its origin among other things, in active Pyorrhea

Most cases of oral infection have their beginning in and about the teeth. It occurs through the inflamed gum tissues and the breaking down of the bone structure surrounding the teeth, finishing with an abscess of a Pyorrhetic con-

Mouth infection has a direct relation to systemic diseases. In the last 10 years scientists, through persistent research work, have arrested the attention of both the medical and work, have arrested the attention of both the medical and dental professions, and it is now a recognized scientific fact that a very close relationship exists. Probably the best known examples of this relationship are to be found in the heart and vascular system, Kidney Disease, Arthritis, Muscular Lesions and certain nervous abnormalities. It is well to be remembered that afflictions having their source in the mouth are usually found in groups rather than singly. One usually finds himself in a rundown condition, suffering from several complaints, of possibly treacherous natures, to the extent that they do not attach sufficient importance to the condition which is responsible for it.

One scientist reports that in 498 cases of chronic arthritis

One scientist reports that in 498 cases of chronic arthritis—89 per cent were due to mouth infections—76 per cent due to pyorrhea. Oral diseases can seriously affect the nervous system—bringing about such conditions as neurasthenia (nervous prostration), weakness, lassitude, early fatigue, mental depression, dizziness, insomnia, tachycardia (fast heart), gastric and intestinal expansions, gastric pains, neuralgia, headaches and numerous other things. As a rule, they are due to a toxic condition and may occur indirectly through disturbances of the glands. Severe indigestive pains could be caused by pus from Pyorrhetic teeth—also, dry, cracking joints and dry, scaly skin are associated with it. By all means, save your teeth—guard your health.
